Celebrities Raise Funds for HIV/AIDS on Celebrity Apprentice

January 10, 2012

NBC's hit television show Celebrity Apprentice will turn up the volume on HIV/AIDS awareness this season with a triple dose of support from celebrity contestants. Funds raised by Miss Universe 2008 Dayana Mendoza will go to the Latino Commission on AIDS. Stand-up comic Lisa Lampanelli, a longtime supporter of AIDS Walk New York, will compete for Gay Men's Health Crisis. Finally, actor and comedian Arsenio Hall will play on behalf of the Magic Johnson Foundation.
