The Big Push to End AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria

October 18, 2012

The Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, in partnership with The Huffington Post, has launched a new digital campaign to influence decision-makers to stay the course in the battle against these diseases despite financial pressures, especially since such progress has been made. The Big Push seeks the support of individuals. You can take a photo holding up one of the six pre-made signs available for download. “No Child Born With HIV” and “AIDS Treatment For All” are among the signs. Additional campaign partners have other ways to take action.
