Kentucky to Consider Medical Marijuana Bill in 2013

September 6, 2012

A medical marijuana bill has been pre-filed in the Kentucky legislature for its 2013 session, StopTheDrugWar.org reports. Senate Bill 11 was filed early to get a head start in building support for it. The bill would permit people with serious medical conditions such as HIV/AIDS, cancer and multiple sclerosis to use marijuana to help them manage their symptoms. A doctor's recommendation would be required. The bill would create a network of state-regulated dispensaries and also allow patients to grow their own marijuana. The legislative session begins January 2.
