

Pregnant? Don't Forget to Floss

May 12, 2008

Along with taking prenatal vitamins and eating right, good dental care is a key to a healthy pregnancy, says a new study from the American Dental Association (ADA). Researchers have found a link between mothers-to-be who have untreated gum disease and low birth weight. Also, women who have gum disease are more likely to develop pregnancy-related (i.e., gestational) diabetes, which can lead to the mother having high blood pressure and her baby being overweight or born prematurely.

Experts suggest brushing twice and flossing once a day along with getting a routine exam at the beginning of your pregnancy.

Learn more about dental care by reading RH's "Flossing."

© 2026 Smart + Strong All Rights Reserved.

<http://beta.docker.realhealthmag.com/article/pregnancy-dentalcare-flossing-14551-2785>